- Jecorey Arthur, Tara Anderson, and Kirsten Pfalzgraf wrapped up their 20-week training at PRX (Boston) last week. They have been working on our podcast The Music Box. Look for season 2 later this summer.

- Daniel isn't here today, because he's on his way back from speaking on a panel at a public radio conference presented by NPR, bragging on our community and education engagement work.

- Louisville Orchestra broadcasts start this Thursday (5/16) at 7pm. The series features most of the music from the 2018/2019 season.

- Carnegie Hall Live, a 13-week series featuring some of the 2018/2019 season at the world's most famous concert hall, starts July 19th at 7pm.

WFPL

WFPL is working on a primary election edition of its voter guide, which was very successful back on November. We're also planning for Primary Night coverage; on Tuesday, we'll have a live call-in news special from 7-8pm, which will be broadcast statewide on our partner stations. Our new podcast, Here Today, is in production and the first episode will debut on June 25. WFPL is also currently hosting an NPR Kroc Fellow--Henry Zimmerman--and we have two more interns starting later this month.

OVR

The U.S. Dept of Justice has taken action on the unpaid mine safety fines that the Ohio Valley ReSource reported on last month. Working with NPR to obtain federal data on delinquent mine safety debts, the ReSource found that companies belonging to the family of West Virginia Gov. Jim Justice owed more than $4M in overdue safety fines - the highest such debt in the country. On May 7 DOJ sued the Justice companies to recover those debts.

WFPK

Our next WFPK Waterfront Wednesday is May 29th and will feature Dylan LeBlanc, Adia Victoria and Bridge 19!

WFPK and WUOL are planning some special programming for World Refugee Day on June 20th. If you know an international musician who'd be good to play live on air, or someone in an organization working with refugees who'd be good to interview please let me know at sowen@wfpk.org!

Late June/early July WFPK members will get a sneak peak at the new Paristown Concert Hall! I'm currently in hot pursuit of a national band to play the members only event. More to come
